Senior Organ Student To Play

Janet Sutherland, a music major from Columbus, will be presented in her senior organ recital on Sunday, May 21, in Dobbs Auditorium.

Janet is also majoring in English. In April, she will perform in graduate studies on a tezaphone at Auburn. She will enter Auburn in the fall. Her background plan calls for teaching college English.

One of the selections on the program, the Thomas Arne FUSTUPPSCHN, was played by Beethoven. In the spring, Janet will play in New York last year for the honorary recital at the Music organ.

Major works on the recital include: Beethoven, Sonata I in EMINSTE BURU; the Prelude, Fugue and Variations of Charles Franck; and the Prelude, Fugue, and Gavottes by Dukas.

Other works include the DIF-

The new SCA cabinet has been working on many projects for next and for the rest of this year according to Joel Dent, newly elected president.

One of the major projects for the coming year will be informing more students of the work of the organization. Angela Avant, publicity chairman, is working on getting news to print in different locations on campus to display information concerning current SCA projects. There will be a bulletin board for announcements also, but the location has not yet been decided upon. The cabinet feels that if more students knew of the SCA activities, more would participate.

There will be a workshop May 20 in Columbus where the cabinet members will meet with students from other colleges with active Student Christian Associations to work out plans for the future in doing a better job to help students understand their part in working out social problems that will arise in the future. According to Joel, they will "work on a proposed program next year that will involve helping under-privileged people, redressing injustice, and assuring student citizenship."

These topics will be brought out in the programs next year.

The Worship Committee, headed by Kathy Erwin, has plans for improving the Little Chapel. "The most important thing the SCA can do," according to Joel, "would be to provide a place that is reserved and beautiful for the students to go to when they feel the need." Specific plans include painting and making the altar section all one color, having drapes put in at least some of the windows, and buying liturgic nails for the altar. They are also considering buying more altar appointments. The committee has arranged for the lights to continue to be on in the chapel in the evening for anyone who would like to go there. Students are asked, however, not to use the chapel as a short-cut.

Plans are being made for Orientation next year to acquaint the students with the activities of the SCA so that they will have a greater interest in the organization.

A recent project was the annual World University Service drive. The drive is sponsored by the World-Relations Committe with Jesica Bridges as chair.

The drive this year was different from other years. Last fall it was carried out by personal solicitation in the dorms. The World University Service, in addition to helping students all over the world to talk about missions and to come to a better understand of the world to talk out problems and to be a challenge to the performers. Each actor and actress has undergone instruction in trying to deliver the true dialects of which the preface says there is none. However, as most know, learning any pronunciation is quite a task, and so is learning English.

Wages To Star in Shaw's Play

On May 19 and 20, Mary Ann Wages will star in her senior drama under the direction of Miss Sylvia Strickland. Mary Ann is pictured left as Ellen, the dancer who paints the portraits in the production. The play is given in English dialect and proves to be a challenge to the performers. LAGARRE COLLEGE has seen many things improved on this campus. In earlier years these changes would have been unnoticed. The L. C. administration and has been working in the best interests of the student. The administration aids for suggestions to better the school, some of these or are should be refused for failure. In years past, attendance at the Fine Arts festivities was required. This requirement was cancelled this year the effort of our Student Body President (prent for the Student Government president). It was stated that students would attend and derive more from the programs, if it was not a necessity to attend. However, after having viewed the attendances and programs, I believe this decision, concerning attendance, should be left to the discretion of the administration. Many of our "high-thinking" students just weren't there. We can try to make it possible for the more. This store we truly appreciate: the main concern is the delivery of the mail. This matter needs to be clarified, the school is not responsible with the Little Store in this capacity any longer.

A problem in dice need of reconsideration is the true effectiveness of the English test. What is the good of taking and passing an English test at the first of the year, if later you find you must take it again? Everyone should be conscientious of his own language, but does this repetition of a test really help? Either the first test is significant and should be improved, or the teacher is uncertain of the basis for which a corrected one should retake the test; and so the students are added to the program, if it was not a necessity to attend. Night Watchman Becomes A Much - Beloved Institution

By Porter Morgan

In the two years that Eugene Overcash has been night watchman at LaGrange College, he has established himself as one of the most interesting characters on our campus.

When I first approached Mr. Overcash and asked for an interview for the HILLTOP NEWS, his first response was, "I ain't the one for that. I don't know nothing about that stuff." However, after a few minutes of conversation he agreed to talk with me for a few moments.

"Well, what you wanna know?" he asked as he took off his hat and sat down on my bed.

I happened to notice two empty bullet holders on his gunbelt and hoped that maybe this would be a good start for my interview.

When asked about the two missing bullets, Mr. Overcash's eyes flared a wide grin that revealed pure unhindered happiness.

"Had to shoot this thing twice," he said as he held up his .44 revolver, "some back 'low Christ'."

On the first week of April.

To April?" I asked, remembering the week end of the SGA debate.

"Yes, same boy was trying to sneak in Pitt's. Yelled at him to stop, but after a few mintues I happened to notice two empty bullet holders on his gunbelt and hoped that maybe this would be a good start for my interview.
