Cover the summer Dean C. Lee Harwell announced the appointment of eight new faculty members. All of the appointments are effective Fall Quarter.

To fill the position of assistant professor of history, Dean Harwell has appointed Mrs. lane Williams, who is a native of Hammond, La., but his parents now live in Church Hill, Tenn. He was awarded his master's degree in modern European history at The University of Georgia and has completed residence requirements for the doctorate.

Earlier Williams had studied at the University of Alabama and received his bachelor of science degree in social studies at East Tennessee College. While engaged in graduate study he held the position of defense action assistant for two years, appointed for special service by the university faculty at Mississippi State College for Women. He has begun work toward his doctor's degree in history at the University of Alabama, and is to be a member of the faculty of the University of Georgia, at Athens.

Shirley E. Thomas Jr., president of the Alumni Association has announced that his term as president will conclude August 31, and he will have resigned from his post.

A native of Savannah, Sullivan has received his undergraduate degree at the University of William and Mary and earned his master's degree at George Peabody College. He has also completed graduate work at the University of Georgia in education.

Sullivan's personal affiliations include Kappa Phi Kappa, Phi Beta Kappa national and international honor societies, and Kappa Sigma national and local honor society in band music.

"Representing Georgia's Oldest Independent Institution of Higher Learning"
There is a story on front page about the new absence regulations. It is not a very interesting story, but its content is important. It simply states that the individual student now has some responsibility; that of attending class. If this responsibility is not filled the student may have no class to attend.

It is as simple as that.

Or is it? These new regulations state that if a professor feels absences taken by a student tend to hurt that student’s work, the professor should instigate the gears that may produce a W or a WF if one more cut is taken.

A question is posed; how many absences does one take for a student’s work to be hurt.

The answer will obviously vary. Some instructors will allow students to take three or four times without report, others will allow ten or fifteen before reporting, some will never report and, to the other extreme, some professors will feel one absence is enough for a report to the Absence Committee.

Then, in effect, these new absence regulations also put some responsibility on the professors; that of using good judgment in weighing the effects of absences on a student’s work.

It does not call for professors to blindly report every student that takes one or two absences and, then again, it does not encourage the professor to ignore an excessive number of absences.

The Hilltop News feels that these new regulations are better for everyone concerned. But only if everyone concerned, students and professors alike, realize the responsibility these new regulations entail. The time will tell.

A Belated Thanks

Last Spring Quarter The Hilltop News suggested that the library increase its hours over the weekend before exams to meet the student needs. We found that the library acknowledged our suggestion to more than the amount suggested.

For the student body, if we may express its feelings, we wish to make a belated thank you and to commend the library for its action.

LC Offers: New Life And New Surprises

BY DRUE LINTON

Gragge College stated its 134th year Sunday. As an introduction to higher learning it has progressed to the capacity to become one of the academically best small schools in the south. But LaGrange does not rest on its laurels; it is an institution of higher learning. It is also an active community without limits.

For the resident students, it offers a simple another year of new experiences and activities in college life. LaGrange, truly has a personality of its own. This ‘personality’ may be good or bad, it all depends on the individual student.

Transfers will find our campus very different from other college campuses, large or small. Many transfers will find it easy to fit in. They will also realize the responsibilities these new regulations entail. The time will tell.

Pres. Offers A Thought

Dr. Henry

We welcome new students and old to The Hill. This is going to be the best year. The College has never had it, we trust it will be the best year you have known.

College is a place of experience. How you come to face with the facts of life. It is necessary for us to believe in a democracy, to believe in the majority, to believe in the equal rights of all people. They are not ours. They never have been. They never will be. One is not surprised to gauge himself by his fellows, for we are not men in a pod. You must decide for yourself where to begin.

Mrs. Burrill is the mother of two sons, one of whom is a student at Harvard University.

T.L. Glennan

Mrs. Seward is a native of Memphis, Tenn. and graduated "cum laude with honors" at Memphis State University. In June, she was awarded a master of fine arts degree in art at the University of Georgia.

Before continuing her art education at Georgia in 1962, Mrs. Seward had taught for several years in the Memphis public schools. She was a recipient of a graduate assistantship at the University of Georgia.

Mrs. Seward is a member of the National Education Association and has held membership in the Tennessee Education Association. She is a member of The Methodist Church.

David P. Lindecamp, a native of West Chester, Pa., professor of social science attended West Chester State College and graduated from Washington and Lee University. He has done graduate study in social sciences at Louisiana State University and is currently engaged in graduate study toward his doctorate in political science at Emory University.

Lindecamp hold an advanced graduate fellowship at Emory and was previously a part-time instructor at Georgia Tech. At Washington and Lee he was a member of the university's team on the nationally televised "Quiz Bowl" program. He is a member and former local officer in both Pi Sigma Alpha national political science recognition society and Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity.

To fill the position of Associate Professor of History, Dean Harwell has appointed Dr. Virgil D. Davis.

Dr. V.S. Davis

Dr. Davis was awarded his doctor of philosophy degree in history at the University of Georgia in June. He also holds an undergraduate degree from Furman University and graduate degrees from New Orleans Baptist Seminary and the University of Alabama.

Since 1957 Dr. Davis has been a member of the history faculty at Georgia State College, although he was on leave from 1960 to 1962 to continue his graduate study at the University of Georgia. There he was a teaching assistant.

Previously Dr. Davis taught at the University of Alabama and served as historian at the Gaduson (AIL) Air Force Depot.

He has been a member of the Southern Historical Society, the Civil War Round Table, and the Alabama Historical Society. He was elected, on the basis of his academic record, to membership in Phi Alpha Theta national history honor society.

Dr. Davis is married and the father of one son.

Mrs. C.W. Burrill

While engaged in graduate study at Georgia, Miss Britt was a laboratory teaching assistant. Previously she had held research and laboratory positions in the chemistry department of Louisiana State University, the research division of West Point Manufacturing Company in Shreveport, the Georgia Department of Public Health's water laboratory, and Georgia Tech's engineering experiment station.

Named assistant professor of mathematics, Mr. Charles C. Burrell is a native of East La Porte, N.C., but his family now lives in Tuckaseigee, N.C. He is a graduate of West Carolina College and has done graduate study in mathematics, Mr. Burrell was a teaching assistant.

Miss Frances L. Britt will become assistant professor of chemistry. She is a native of Shadetree, Ga., and a graduate of Georgia State College for Women. She has done graduate study in chemistry at Louisiana State University and the University of Georgia.

Summer Changes College Campus

Students returning to the LaGrange College campus this fall are sure to notice quite a few changes on the hill, such as; the renovation of the former library into an administration building, the renovation of Smith Hall, and the partial erection of the new college chapel.

The old library has been completely transformed. All three floors have been divided into offices which will house the president, the academic dean, business manager, registrar and admissions director.

Smith Hall has also undergone many changes. New fire escapes have been built on each wing. The former little chapel has been transformed into offices for the public relations, The Hilltop News, the Quadangle, and the Scroll. The former publications offices are now the new infirmary. Dean Harwell's old office is now the residence counselor's suite.

Smith Hall will still house the offices of the dean of students, alumni director and the news director. These offices, however, have been shuffled around. The office of the dean of students is now in President Henry's former office, The smoking director's office is in the former parlor, and the news director's office is in the former admissions office.

All the halls and offices have been repainted. Some of the rooms on the top floor have been repainted and the bathrooms have been renovated.

The outside woodwork on Smith, Pitts, Turner, and Dobbs has been repainted. Two new offices have been built in the lower hall of Dobbs to accommodate the growing science department.

The construction of the new chapel is well underway and if things go as planned, the chapel should be in use by the first of 1965.

Some repair work and remodeling is being done on the president's new home on the corner of Vernon and Broad Streets. Plans call for Dr. Henry to move in around the first of the year.

They will both be here for one year taking a wide range of courses to fulfill their requirements for their B.S. degree, which they will receive from the Medical College of Georgia.

The girls commented that when they had enrolled at Tift College for this year, but, on short notice, received an offer from LC which they happily welcomed.

As soon as things actually got under way here at LaGrange the girls said they would establish definite infirmary hours. They did emphasize that one of them would always be on duty in case of emergencies.

For this year at least, many students obviously will not find sickness as painful as it has been in the past.

Outstanding Men Named

The publication will also feature the Ten Outstanding Young Men of America each year, the selection having been made each year since 1938 by the Jaycees.

Dr. Brown is a native of England and a 1936 LC graduate. He earned both his master's and doctoral degrees at Emory University. He joined the LaGrange faculty in 1962 after serving on the faculties of Agnes Scott and Davidson Colleges and Emory University. He is the current president of the LaGrange College Alumni Association.

Dr. Kay is a native of Royston and was educated at Emory University and New York University. He is a ministerial member of the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church and has been a member of the college faculty since 1961.

A native of LaGrange, Fowler was a member of the 1954 class at LC and was graduated at Auburn University. He is immediately past president of the LaGrange College Alumni Club in LaGrange which sponsored the first "LaGrange College Appreciation Week" in September 1963. He was selected as the "Outstanding Young Man" in LaGrange for 1963, and recently moved to Brunswick.

Dr. Lucchesi is a native of Egypt and earned his undergraduate degree at LaGrange in 1965, his masters at the University of Georgia, and his doctor of philosophy at the University of California. He is a research fellow in genetics for The National Institute of Health at the University of Oregon and a member of Sigma XI national science research honor society, The Genetics Society of America, and the American Institute of Biological Sciences. At the Eleventh International Congress on Genetics at The Hague, Netherlands, in 1963, he served as chairman of a section on developmental genetics.

Dr. Smith, a LaGrange native, and the first native graduate of LaGrange College, earned his undergraduate degree in 1946. He received his degree in medicine from the University of Georgia and interned at Norfolk General Hospital in Norfolk, Virginia, and completed his residency at Crawford Long Hospital in Atlanta.

Dr. Brown, Dr. Kay, Lucchesi and Dr. Smith all married LaGrange College graduates.
LC Retires 2
8 More Resign

(Stroud)—Two LaGrange College professors were retired and given the rank of professor emeritus at the end of the college's academic year.

One teacher resigned to take another position, three left to continue their graduate study, and one left the faculty to marry and become a homemaker.

Dr. Walthall G. Henry Jr., president of the college, announced the retirements and resignations.

Retiring from the faculty were Miss Verdie F. Miller, associate professor of mathematics who had taught at LC since 1947, and Richard H. Bennett Jr., assistant professor of physics who had been a faculty member since 1961.

Each professor emeritus will continue to live in LaGrange.

Others who are leaving the college faculty include Ezra L. Sellers, professor of art, to be specialist in art with the University of Georgia Institute of Community and Area Development; Carlton S. Gupill, associate professor of social science, to continue work on his doctoral degree at Duke University; Perry Leavelle Jr., assistant professor of history, to continue his doctoral study at Tulane University; and Morris C. Webb, assistant professor of chemistry, to do further graduate study in a National Science Foundation grant.

Miss Sylvia Strickland, assistant professor of speech and drama, has married and left the faculty. Now Mrs. Thomas M., she has moved to Jacksonville, Ala.

What's In Store For '64 Grads

(LCNS)—What does the future hold for LaGrange College's Class of '64 which graduated earlier this month?
The answer, of course, would be difficult to predict even with a crystal ball, but a survey by the college's News Service does show what the graduating seniors were planning for the future.
(The Class of '64 totaled 93 students—47 women and 46 men—and was the college's largest graduating class in its 133-year history.)

The survey showed that 29 per cent of the LC graduates plan to begin graduate and professional school study this summer or fall.

Other seniors are planning to enter the following career fields immediately: business administration and merchandising, social work, military service, teaching, religious education, art, and journalism.

Of the 71 per cent entering one of the fields immediately, several seniors indicated that they hope to do post-graduate study at a later date.

A breakdown of the graduates enrolling immediately in courses leading to further academic degrees shows that they will study the following subjects: law, theology, medicine, chemistry, biology, history, art, French, dentistry, English, and speech and drama.

Such a wide range of occupations and interests is thought to be typical of graduates of a liberal arts college such as LaGrange.

Teaching is receiving the largest number of LaGrange grads this year, with a total of 33 planning to enter the field this summer or fall.

Business administration and related fields will receive the third largest number of grads, after teaching and graduate school.

Sixteen students are planning on employment in retail merchandising, insurance sales and adjustment, public relations, accounting, banking, marketing, personnel management, and data processing.

Five art majors are planning on careers in interior decorat ing, commercial art, and advertising design. The remainder of the class will enter military service (5), social work (2), religious education (1), and journalism (1).

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all of our customers at LaGrange College for the good business you have given us in the past. We wish to thank you for your patience when we were so busy. Mariotti Sets Goal
Win 20 Plus GIAC

BY DRUE LINTON

“Yes, we’re definitely looking for a better year!” Coach Al Mariotti declared when questioned about his 1964 Panther basketball team in an interview last week.

The coach exclaimed that he has set a goal for the 1964 LC Panthers, “I want to win at least 20 games (of a 24 game schedule) and also take the GIAC conference championship.”

As the interview progressed the coach pointed out that he had a “better nucleus” this year than he has had in the past, “We have seven boys returning and are expecting six freshmen to complete this year’s roster,” he said, in discussing each of the boys, the coach said he expects a team “maybe a little taller than last year.”

“We do have a problem with the position of center,” he continued, “I lost both boys who played center last year.” The coach seems optimistic about this position though, he explained that he has a 6’4” freshman that might be able to handle the job.

Asked about his 1964-65 conference schedule, Coach Mariotti said he expects Shorter College to be the toughest team to beat, with last year’s conference champion Valdosta State fielding a strong challenge.

Rounding out the conference, Piedmont will be stronger than last year and Berry will be out to beat us after we scored over one hundred points on them last year.

Out of conference games will give the team a good workout with Huntingdon College of Montgomery, Alabama and Mercer being the tough ones to beat.

In conclusion the coach pointed out that both the first and last games will be played on our home court. The first game will be November 21st with the Panthers hosting Alabama College.

The rest of the Panthers’ 1964-65 schedule looks like this:

Dec. 3- Jacksonville at LaGrange
Dec. 5- Mercer at Macon
Dec. 8- Birmingham-Southern at Macon
Dec. 11- Piedmont at Demorest
Jan. 2- Georgia State at Atlanta
Jan. 5, 16- Mercer at Montgomery, Ala.
Jan. 6- Mercer at LaGrange
Jan. 12- Shorter at LaGrange
Jan. 15, 27- Georgia State at LaGrange
Jan. 20- West Georgia at Carrollton
Jan. 27- Berry at Mount Berry
