Peace Corps Representative To Speak Here

BY SUSAN BUTLER

Students in Havana and Broad Street Dormitories are involved in somewhat different activities because of the student government that exists in both buildings. While the college student government is involved in a variety of activities, the dormitory has its own student government. This system is composed of freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior floors with representatives from each floor elected to the student body. The system is designed to encourage students to become more involved in their dormitory environment.

Mystery Surrounds Stunt Night Plans

BY TOM CAPITON

An air of anticipation has settled over representatives of all four class levels as WAA sponsored Stunt Night, slated for Friday, January 22, has been formulated, but all are shrouded in secrecy. All state in thestightingo, now held by the seniors.

The Class of '65, trying for its second straight victory, is working on its program. Theers are the writers Lavon Bales and Judy McQuon, Juniors Judy Thomas and Delight Parker are charged with that class's student chore, while the Frosh are relying on Noble Sharon to come up with a winning script. The Sophomores? They, according to representative Neil MePhail, hadn't come up with any cry - better ideas by Monday night. Then, the only hint of what will happen will come from the Senior Class President Andy Jones, who says to look for something amusing and different from his group.

Students in Broad Street Dormitory, eight boys have been elected to the council. The council has the authority formerly held by proctors for the dormitory. The council has the authority formerly held by proctors for the dormitory. The council will meet every two weeks in the lobby of the cafeteria for almost twelve hours, I was told. Students in Hawkes and Broad Grange (Jeremy was late getting to Laurinburg) we talked about everything from popular music to politics. Stuart is the lively half of a successful duo known to the college world as Chad and Jeremy. The other half of the duo, almost didn't make it up to the States. Chad has a serious race problem, and I'm worried about how I cut my hair. "Americans have their values all wrong," he said. "In America, there's so much of it, and it's all so superficial. I've seen the way of life in Britain is pretty much the same."

"Favorite artists of Bob, Bryan Ferry, and L.P. are Bryan Wilson (of the Beach Boys)."

"And so it went, on into the night. Chad, in the small, perused over 1,000 screaming fans at Callaway Auditorium, Shannon and Dave, last Friday night. In conversation with Chad (Jeremy was late getting to Laurinburg) we talked about everything from popular music to politics. The Beatles are great pop groups, but we'd rather not be typed with them. Artists have a fashion for foreheads. If you can't see the forehead, the haircut, bald, Fat Spectrum, (record promoter) of all that hair is worse than Ringo's, was being
Hats Off

Hats off to Dr. John Anderson and the members of the pep band for their enthusiastic participation at the basketball games season. The music added an organized aura to the last pep rally and helped to make it a successful endeavor. We feel that part of any college athletic event should be meaningful and enthusiastic rally, followed, as was the case this last week, by that all important support from the cheerleaders. With this commendation goes the hope that we will see more and continued support of this kind for our cagers.

Thank You

The Hilltop News staff wishes to express its gratitude to those of the administration, the faculty, and the students who have expressed words of encouragement and praise during the past two week struggle to get the paper to press in the absence of the editor.

Your thoughtfulness and kindness has indeed given us the courage to continue the weekly publication of The Hilltop News in the hopes that it will continue to be the voice of the students.

Honor System Yes Or No?

BY MIKE CHRISTENSEN

There seem to be some thoughts permitting around the campus concerning the possibility of establishing an honor system here at LaGrange College. A code of this type is perhaps one of the most serious steps a college can take in its relationship with the student body.

The essence of the problem is that in the transition from the system we have now to an honor code we cease dealing with hard...core rules which can easily be codified and moved into the realm of human nature which is not as predictable as some people would like it. As much as we try to ignore it, unless we're under a completely controlled environment, such as occurs in the service academies, there exists, in each of us, that thread of unreliability which makes life interesting, sometimes even against our will.

This is not to say that an honor system definitely could not work here; it has worked at other schools, but only after a long period of study and honest soul - searching on the part of both students and administration alike, and even after has been firmly established there is, for obvious reasons, no way to determine how well it is functioning.

LaGrange College's biggest and most enthusiastic pep rally ever was born and became history in less than thirty hours this week, and much credit goes to sophomores Bill England. He noted that most of the campus realizes we've got a winning ball team, but that they need our part to make the top.

Enthusiasm seemed to flow from cheerleaders Mary Joan Riley, Donny Hart, Sheila Davis, and Peggy Calhoun into each of the estimated 175 students who turned out for the rally Tuesday night. Dr. Anderson and the pep band added extra color and meaning with "We are the Panthers," "Ditty," and the Alma Mater.

Kerrey Johnny Glisson put the spotlight on a number of team members and all of them expressed a real appreciation for the tangible evidence of supportshown that night. Glisson then read a letter from coach Al Marchetti, who was away at the time scouting Jacksonville State. Added impetus came with Dean Harwell's speech of congratulations, in which he pledged full administration approval and support.

The evening's activities then focused on an edgy labeled "The Shorter Hawks" and, in short order, the stuffed dummy was hung in the patio.

The spirit that built up so quickly that night poured over into Wednesday's game and a record turnout was on hand to cheer the Panthers. Tentation of the light competition was relaxed by a group of male cheerleaders sporting very "feminine" outfits.

Moments after the game, starter T. J. Thompson was asked if the added spirit contributed to the team's effort. He answered, "I certainly did. I just hope they (the students) won't quit because we lost this one."

Ocean Jumper At L.C.

1831 is an important date in the history of LaGrange College as are the dates 1896 and 1953. At these times LC was founded purchased by the Methodist Church, and made coeducational, respectively. Another date that may prove to be important also is September 20, 1943, on that date in Cleveland, Ohio, a baby boy began a life of travel and adventure that eventually led him to The Hill.

Knot Ferris lived in Cleveland for ten years. These first few years were important to him, but for the most part it was the next twelve that made him the unusual personality that he is today.

Knot and his family moved to Baccarat, France, about ten miles southwest of Paris. Four years later the Ferris' home was in Rouen Normandy.

All this time Knot attended French schools and in 1951 he graduated.

He returned to the United States to go to college and enrolled Clarkson College, Potsdam, New York, as a freshman. He remained there one semester and returned to Europe.

In Zermott, Switzerland, he was a ski instructor January through March 1952.

Although he is an American citizen, Knox was drafted into the French Army in March 1962. He left the French for the American Army and served at Fort Dix, New Jersey, Fort Devens, Massachusetts, and Anacostia, Maryland, where he completed his tour of duty.
