Those Walls in the Center

Contrary to some of the popular opinion on campus, "those two walls" in the student center do have a purpose aside from what they contain the plants from being on the ground. As a matter of fact the walls will serve a double purpose-that of adorning the students more convenience and pleasure in their leisure time.

The area between the walls will be entirely carpeted and decorated with brand new furniture. There will be a full size couch, coffee table, comfortable chairs and various other artifacts for comfort.

The student center within a student center was designed by a prominent Atlanta architect, and is the fruit of many hours of study by members of the administration and student leaders.

Mr. Arthur P. Cook, Business Manager of the college and leader of the project has also announced that the vending machines which currently line one side of the student center will soon make way for new, modern machines with a greater variety of offerings. Hot machines will be included among these. The new vending machines in their turn will be partitioned off, so as to separate them from the rest of the student center.

It is expected that both projects will be completed by the beginning of November.

Lost And Found

Some students will be glad to learn that Dean Love is the official keeper of all lost and consequently found articles on campus. He has quite a collection of things, ranging from a small size Molotov Cocktail to such conventional articles as sanding and cones. He is quite willing to get rid of these things because he has to make room for the new things that will start coming in soon (lost articles). He asks that all students who have lost anything in the last few years come by and claim what is rightfully theirs.

This is the latest and finest language equipment available and will greatly accelerate teaching students to think and speak in a particular foreign language.'

The instructor of console contains two tape decks, a turntable for disc recordings, and two jacks for external recorders or broadcasts. In all, the instructor may...
One of the changes in student regulations which is included in the new Student Handbook is a welcome step to some LaGrange College students. The section formerly reading "Any evidence of antireligious or misbehavior on the campus or while under the jurisdiction of the College, which is traceable to drinking, wherever indulged in, will subject the student to disciplinary action,..." will now read "Any misbehavior on the campus or while under the jurisdiction of the College which is traceable to drinking, wherever indulged in, will subject the student to discipline action...."

The changes are to make it more active and a member of our student government will be the student who most closely follows the rules and policies, democratically, by which the administration or cafeteria officials can give some reasons for behavior. It's Not Cold In Sweden

Eva Kronqvist thinks cornbread tastes like pop corn. There's no corn in Eva's native Sweden, so when she visited the Southern dish, it reminded her of another famous American corn product.

Eva is in her first year at LaGrange College for a year. She says she plans to study social work. Her high school exams are now being evaluated in Chicago. She will move to the college campus tomorrow with the freshmen and new students. She is one of 40 students from Rotary Student Foundation.

Eva Kronqvist is sponsored by the local Rotary Club, acting under the Georgia Rotary Student Foundation. Eva is one of 40 students from around the world who will study this year with a Rotary scholarship.

Eva saw her first football game here last week. She didn't know what was happening.

Eva has been staying with her parents in Hasselholm, located in the old Danish area of Sweden, Hasselholm, with a 15,000 population near Copenhagen, Denmark.

Eva explained in her lovely accent, in English that English is compulsory in Sweden schools for six years. Often Swedish children can read and write in English, but their Swedish is terrible.

Eva has been staying with three LaGrange families since she arrived. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Casabon, Mr. and Mrs. John Newman Jr., and Mrs. Ed Mullinax.

Eva explained that since Sweden was so far north most of the nights were twilight with only an hour or so of darkness.

Eva explained that pictures for the Queencircle are to be taken simultaneously with registration this year. This is part of the requirements for completing registration. No one will be allowed to complete registration unless they have their picture taken.

All boys to wear coats and slacks and ties appropriate for purposes of identification.

All girls are to wear pastel colored round collared blouses. Ties will be as tough as any in the college's history.

Missing from the Panthers' schedule will be the 1965-66 opponents Jacksonville State, Samford University, and Birmingham-Southern, all three of Alabama.

All our traditional rivals appear to have strengthened themselves in preparation for the forthcoming schedule. It should make for a memorable season and one that Panther fans will enjoy. Players returning from last year's club, which finished with a 17-12 record, will be seniors Joe Pullin, Johnny Pate, and Nelson Hurt, juniors Tom Doughtett and Steve Fry, and sophomores John Collins and Allen Rainey.

Six players will be lost from the 1965-66 club which compiled the college's best record: 17 wins and 12 losses. They are graduates Hugh and David Currima, Glenn Lord, and Ronnie Myers, and two sophomores, Earl Morrison and Jim Jackson.
